Kharge polled 7897 of the 9385 votes cast while Tharoor garnered a meagre 1072. Sources said 416 votes were invalid.

Chairman of the Congress Election Authority Madhusudan Mistry officially announced Kharge elected, with the victory of the 80-year old party warhorse, a former nine term state MLA and a three-term MP (twice Lok Sabha and currently Rajya Sabha) being celebrated with festive fervour amid the beating of drums at AICC headquarters.

PM wishes Mallikarjun Kharge

NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 19

Prime Minister Narendra Modi greeted Congress leader Mallikarjun Kharge on his election as party president on Wednesday and wished him a fruitful tenure. "My best wishes to Shri Mallikarjun Kharge Ji for his new responsibility as President of @INCIndia. May he have a fruitful tenure ahead," Modi tweeted. Kharge was elected Congress president, defeating Shashi Tharoor in an electoral contest, the sixth in the party's 137-year-old history. The Karnataka leader will formally take over as the party's president on October 26. He will be the first party president from outside the Gandhi family in 24 years.

In Andhra Pradesh today, former Congress chief Rahul Gandhi said his future role would be decided by the Congress chief, who is the supreme authority in the party. Kharge was always tipped to win, with the election tilted in his favour from day one, as evidenced in the list of proposers that included all Gandhi family loyalists even though party chief Sonia Gandhi made it clear that there was no official candidate. Tharoor acknowledged defeat today, moments after his poll agent Salman Soz threatened "suitable action" if Mistry did not agree to the team's demand of declaring all votes polled in Uttar Pradesh "invalid", amid allegations of voter fraud. As the results poured in, team Tharoor retreated and reconciled to defeat promising cooperation to Kharge. The importance of Kharge's election is multifold. He is the first non-Gandhi to head the Congress in 24 years, after Sitaram Kesri was unceremoniously ousted in 1988 through a Congress Working Committee resolution that invited Sonia Gandhi to become the party chief.

Hemkund Sahib ropeway project should be completed on war footing: Nitin Gadkari

AGENCY NEW DELHI, OCT 19

Rajya Sabha MP from Punjab Vikramjit Singh Sahney urged Union Minister of Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari for the swift completion of the long-pending project of the ropeway connecting Gobind Ghat to Gurudwara Sri Hemkund Sahib in Uttarakhand.

Gurudwara Hemkund Sahib is a holy place for Sikhs and around 5000 visitors visit it every day. For this, they have to travel by road up to Gobind Ghat and after that on foot or by horses making a night halt at Gobind Dham while tackling inclement weather, landslides and steep climbs.

"This ropeway project was announced and initiated by NHA and Uttarakhand government a few years back but the project has not seen the light of the day yet. The estimated project cost was Rs 850 crores, the government had invited bids for Public Private Partnership (PPP) but the government was not able to attract any private player for the project erstwhile," Singh said.

Sahney said that the National Highway Authority of India should take over the project and start work on it which will benefit lakhs of pilgrims.

"Some of the pilgrims are elderly and the commencement of this project will also boost economic activities and tourism in the region," he said.

The demand for the ropeway comes after the unfortunate helicopter crash in Kedarnath in which six pilgrims and a pilot lost their life.

Punjab", the environment ministry said in a statement.

"Till October 15, the trend of fire events was less as compared to last year but now it has started growing rapidly, especially in Punjab," the statement read.

The ministers noted that the Pusa bio-decomposer - a microbial solution which turns stubble into manure in 15-20 days - was being sprayed in a lesser area in Punjab and its application needs to be promoted and enhanced.

M M Kutty, the chairman of the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM), said Punjab has taken "inadequate" steps in spite of several meetings and efforts by the statutory panel. The Punjab chief secretary was asked to control the increasing rate of fire events in Amritsar and to ensure a 50 per cent reduction in cases of farm fires in the state in comparison to last year. It was mentioned in the meeting that one of the main concerns is the delayed delivery of crop residue management machines in Punjab and Haryana. Rebellion in Dharamsala BJP, Vipin Nehria will contest independent elections

SANJAY AGGARWAL DHARAMSHALA, OCT 19

After giving ticket to Rakesh Chaudhary from Dharamsala, many BJP leaders including Dharamsala BJP Mandal have come against him. The Dharamsala BJP Mandal has warned in two broken words that if the BJP does not change its decision, the Mandal will not work in the elections. The BJP Mandal said that the ticket should be given to any one out of the list of 17 people that went to the BJP high command. Mandal has said that Rakesh Chaudhary had contested the independent elections against the BJP and later he went to the Aam Aadmi Party. After that Rakesh Chaudhary joined BJP. According to Mandal, he does not accept a defector leader and BJP may have to suffer losses in the elections. On the other hand, BJP leader Vipin Nehria has opened a front against his own party after Rakesh Chaudhary got the ticket. On Wednesday afternoon, Vipin Nehria reached Dharamsala's Kachari Chok and blew the anti-BJP trumpet against the BJP party. Vipin Nehria said that he had claimed ticket for the upcoming assembly elections, but he was not given ticket by the BJP high command. In such a situation, now Vipin Nehria will contest the election from Dharamsala assembly as an independent candidate. Vipin Nehria has also made it clear that he will file his nomination on October 21. He said that the BJP party may have to bear the brunt in these elections for contesting as an independent candidate. He said that he has also taken out a rally today in protest against the list of candidates declared by the BJP high command in the assembly elections this morning. He said that the BJP high command party is giving ticket to a person who never belonged to the BJP. He said that Rakesh Chaudhary sometimes goes to Aam Aadmi Party and sometimes to any party for his selfishness. Such a person can also prove fatal for the BJP party. He said that there are many party workers of BJP in Dharamsala itself but BJP high command has given ticket to a defector person, bypassing all those workers. He said that Rakesh Chaudhary is doing politics for his health. He said that he is getting the love and support of the people of Dharamsala.

KISHORI LAL BAINS UNA, OCT 19

In the Himachal Pradesh Assembly elections, on November 12, 2022, BJP State President Suresh Kashyap and Rajya Sabha MP Dr. Sikander Kumar are also going to be tested. In the state, 17 assembly constituencies have been kept reserved for the Scheduled Castes. The Scheduled Caste population in the state is said to be about 28 percent. In July 2020, the party had crowned Suresh Kashyap as the state president by removing Nahan MLA Dr. Rajiv Bindal. It was clear that the BJP's eyes were on the Dalit vote bank in the 2022 elections.

Not only this, in March 2022, the BJP also nominated Dr. Sikander Kumar to the Rajya Sabha. Despite having two Dalit leaders in the BJP camp, this class seems to be ruthless. This is the reason why Union Home Minister Amit Shah also had to say at the Sataun rally that he was ready to write with a pen that the interests of the Scheduled Castes would be protected. Scheduled Assembly Constituencies are reserved for caste, but the big deal is that 4 out of 6 were captured by the Congress in the 2017 election. Apart from Kasauli, the BJP had got the Pachhad seat. In 2017, the current state president Suresh Kashyap won the election. In the 2022 elections, it has to be seen whether the party's state president and MP Suresh Kashyap can show any magic in the Koli fraternity. However, it is a different matter that out of the total 17 seats, 13 were captured by the BJP. It is clear that in 2017, except South Himachal, Scheduled Castes had planted lotus flowers in the lap of BJP in Chamba, Kangra, Mandi, Una and Hamirpur. Chief Minister Jai Ram Thakur was always seen on one side and state president of the party on the other side. The big question is whether the Bharatiya Janata Party will be able to repeat history this time like 2017. It is also a big challenge in front of the state president of the party that in his own parliamentary constituency, only 4 out of 6 assembly constituencies are captured by the Congress. They had occupied the positions that these leaders would break the magic of the Congress in the Scheduled Castes. Overall, the result will come on December 8, it will be known whether the magic is broken or not.

World’s anxiety rises as Xi makes grip on China total

There is a distinct Orwellian touch to the drama of Xi Jinping gearing up for an unprecedented third term as Chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, President of China and supreme commander of the People’s Liberation Army. Some of the world’s most sophisticated mass electronic surveillance technologies, enhanced by artificial intelligence, are backing ‘Big Brother’ to sustain constant vigil on 1.4 billion Chinese citizens even as “Zero Covid” measures are helping to reinforce a control-freakish system obsessed with security and social stability.

The speech of the modern-day emperor, who will continue to be the chairman of everything, at the 20th party congress in the Great Hall of the People, marked by an atmosphere of sycophancy, contained 50 references to “security”, which means the rest of the world may have to tighten seat belts and settle for a bumpy 5-year ride. In taking up the Taiwan issue head-on early in his speech, Xi made it clear that a military conquest of the self-ruling island is not ruled out while China would still pursue the means to convince the Taiwanese to accept Chinese rule.

The text of his 104-minute speech will no doubt be printed and distributed, first to the 96 million members of the party that reigns supreme in China, but whose term limits and restrictions on personality cults have been cast to the winds in elevating Xi Jinping to Mao-like stature. While his aim is said to be to uphold the supremacy of the CPC, Xi will still be in global focus as leader of one half of what is no more a unipolar world dominated by the US.

The Chinese people may, to an extent, be complicit in their acceptance of stability over individual rights and firmer belief in the potency of their national mission. But the tactics of quelling critics, micro-managing businesses in what Xi terms as a “socialist marketplace”, exploiting nationalist fervour and preparing to isolate China while erecting a wall between China and the rest of the world, with Covid as the chief excuse, may ultimately work against the country’s economy.

Xi signalled that economic growth — China’s economy boomed in his 10 years with per capita GDP doubling from $5,190 to $11,283 — may be tempered by headwinds and that priorities going forward after “winning the greatest battle against human poverty in history” would be to maintain the socialist framework and aim for common prosperity and equality of opportunity while working to avoid extremes of inequality.

India at a new low in Global Hunger Index: Does anyone really care?

Sometimes important things fall out of the news cycle and for this reason must continue to be emphasised. Journalists and columnists must not let go of their primary role merely because the entertaining material generates more response from readers and viewers.

In 2014, India’s ranking on the Global Hunger Index, which was then measuring 76 nations, was at number 55. In 2020, out of 107 nations, India fell to number 94. Last year, in 2021, India’s rank was 101 out of 116 countries. On October 15 a report was published which said that in 2022, India’s rank was 107 out of 121 nations. The score is calculated on a 100-point scale reflecting the severity of hunger, where zero is the best score (no hunger) and 100 is the worst. India’s score of 29.1 puts this country in the “serious” category. In 2020, the fall in our score was because the prevalence of child wasting (low weight for height) in the five years between 2014 and 2019 had increased to 17.3 per cent from 15.1 per cent in 2010-2014.

This year, India’s child wasting rate has increased to 19.4, the highest in 20 years, and not only does India’s poor performance make the regional average worse, it is the highest for any nation in the world.

Undernourishment rose in the country from 14.6 per cent in 2018-2020 to 16.3 per cent in 2019-2021. That means more than 22 crore Indians sleep hungry.

Five United Nations agencies published the “State of Food Security and Nutrition in the World” report earlier this year.

This report said that 40 per cent of Indians suffered from food insecurity in 2019-2021 and that India alone accounted for more than one-third of the world’s total severely food-insecure population. This should not surprise us because the government takes pride in the fact that 800 million Indians, meaning 60 per cent of the population, queues up for five kilos of free grain and one kilo of dal every month, and has been queueing up in this manner for over two years. The question is — how does the State in India respond to such reports? When the previous year’s report came, Union minister of state for agriculture Parshottam Rupala told the Rajya Sabha that the government questioned the methodology of the findings. He said: “Some NGO has done the survey. We have asked them on what basis have they reached this conclusion? They have not replied yet. Whenever a street dog gives birth in our village, even though it bites, our women provide them with sheer (sweet dish). So, in a country where such a tradition exists, and an NGO comes and releases such a report about our children, we should not be sensitive to such reports. As far as these surveys are concerned, even healthy and strong children are counted... there should be awareness in society, our dynamic minister Smriti (Irani) ji has started a Jan Andolan, and 13 crore events have been done.” In 2012, Narendra Modi, who was then the chief minister of Gujarat, was asked by the Wall Street Journal why half of Gujarati children under five were stunted, or too short for their age, as of 2006, according to the latest available figures from the Indian government.

His response, which was reported by a national newspaper, was that “the middle class is more beauty-conscious than health-conscious — that is a challenge. If a mother tells her daughter to have milk, they will have a fight — she’ll tell her mother, ‘I won’t drink milk. I’ll get fat’.”

India’s ranking on the index is behind both Pakistan and Bangladesh, but such things do not appear to affect us any longer. It goes without saying that Nepal and Sri Lanka are way ahead of us. China, which we think of as being our competitor, is one of the top 17 nations which are not assigned an individual score because there is little hunger there.

India’s per capita income is now behind Bangladesh’s, but that is also not really something that we are concerned about. The decline here in the economy is something another government would have been hauled over the coals for, but today we merely look away.

I have said here before that for one of my recent books I looked at 53 global indices on which the government was trying to improve its standing. In 49 of them, India has fallen since 2014.

We are using grand and vague terminology — “amrit kaal” and “atma nirbharta” — to cover up what is essentially a failure of the State. It is the sacred task of all elected governments to govern competently. This means to improve the lives of all Indians, who are some of the most poor and wretched in the world. It does not mean to take what was built by previous governments and squander it. That is what we have done. The price for it is being paid daily by the poorest Indians while the media has allowed the government to get away. Which is precisely why these things, even at the cost of serial repetition, must be brought to the notice of all those who are willing to listen.

The Mosquito Net

All through childhood, Miriam Abdullah was shuttled in and out of hospitals. “At some point, even my mum gave up,” recalled Abdullah, now 35.

In Nyalenda, the poor community in Kisumu, Kenya, where Abdullah lives, malaria is endemic and ubiquitous. Some of her friends developed meningitis after becoming infected; one died. “Malaria has really tormented us as a country,” she said. There are tens of millions of horror stories like Abdullah’s, handed down from generation to generation. But now change is coming: Malaria is the rare global health scourge about which experts are sanguine — so much so that some have begun to talk about eradicating the disease.

“I think there’s so much room for optimism,” said Philip Welkhoff, director for malaria programmes at the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. “Later this decade, we could actually launch a push that gets us all the way to zero.” China and El Salvador were certified malaria-free last year, and the six countries in the greater Mekong region, including Vietnam and Thailand, have driven down cases by about 90 per cent. About 25 countries are expected to have eliminated malaria by 2025. The bulk of infections now occurs in Africa. Even there, despite the limitations imposed by the coronavirus pandemic, nearly 12 million more African children received preventive malaria drugs in 2020 than in 2019. But it is the arrival of two new vaccines that portend a major shift. The first, called Mosquirix, was 35 years in the making. It was approved by the World Health Organization last year and may be distributed as soon as late next year. A more powerful malaria vaccine, developed by the Oxford team that created the AstraZeneca Covid-19 vaccine, may be a year or two away. Many experts believe it is this formulation, which has shown an efficacy of up to 80 per cent in clinical trials, that may transform the fight against malaria. Still more options are on the horizon, including an mRNA vaccine being developed by the German company BioNTech; monoclonal antibodies that can prevent malaria for six months or longer; bed nets coated with long-lasting insecticides or with chemicals that paralyse mosquitoes; as well as new ways to trap and kill mosquitoes.

Test of the pudding

Food is one of life’s pleasures, but it can also be a source of pain — especially if you’re among the tens of millions who regularly experience digestive issues such as heartburn, abdominal pain, bloating or diarrhoea. When those symptoms strike, you may wonder: are certain foods to blame?

Food-sensitivity tests promise to supply answers. For decades, these tests were offered mainly in providers’ offices in alternative-medicine settings. Now, they are increasingly available as at-home tests you can purchase online or in drugstores. Manufacturers claim that with several drops of blood or a few plucked hairs, they can identify the foods that are causing your discomfort. Once eliminated from your diet, you’ll be on the road to relief.

That a simple test could guide dietary changes and improve common, disruptive symptoms is certainly appealing. But do these tests work? We asked some experts and looked into the research to find out.

What is a food sensitivity, anyway? According to Dr David Stukus, director of the Food Allergy Treatment Center at Nationwide Children’s Hospital in Columbus in Ohio in the United States, the term food sensitivity is used more in marketing than in medicine. “There really is no consensus definition of what a food sensitivity is,” he said. The companies selling these tests typically describe food sensitivity as what happens when a specific food triggers digestive issues or gut inflammation, causing symptoms such as abdominal pain, bloating or headaches. Symptoms may appear hours or even days after eating, and often resolve when the offending food is avoided.

When physicians or dietitians refer to such issues, they’re more likely to use the term food intolerance, Stukus said (although some may use food sensitivity, too), such as with lactose intolerance, which can cause constipation, diarrhoea and bloating as a result of the difficulty in digesting the sugar found in milk.

Similarly, people with irritable bowel syndrome, or IBS, may be sensitive to certain kinds of carbohydrates called FODMAPs, and altering their diet may relieve their symptoms. A food intolerance or sensitivity is different from a food allergy, which is an immune reaction to certain foods that can cause more severe symptoms such as vomiting, hives, shortness of breath or even life-threatening anaphylaxis, usually within minutes of eating even a small amount.

POEM

Still Heart

When I give up the helm
I know that the time has come for thee to take it.
What there is to do will be instantly done.
Vain is this struggle. Then take away your hands and silently put up with your defeat, my heart, and think it your good fortune to sit perfectly still where you are placed.

Rabindranath Tagore

Liberation through incredulity

How can I not shudder at the death of Indra Meghwal, a Dalit student, at the hands of an overzealous school teacher who beat him to death because the boy had drunk water from a vessel meant for upper caste students? How can I ignore the infringement of human rights when journalists are arrested for no credible reason, democratic dissent demonised, and fundamental rights violated? How can any civilised society allow the colossal imprudence of the felicitation of convicts who had gangraped a Muslim woman?

As I wondered, the title of a painting by Paul Gauguin comes to mind: Where do we come from? What are we? Where are we going? Everything around us is seething; the alarming attacks on the marginalised, the virulent upsurge of fascism, and the unconscionable assault on human rights. A disconcerting future stares us in the face with the triumph of far-Right forces globally and their schemes of establishing hegemony. The free world I breathed in now faces formidable challenges augmented by the resurgence of long-repressed animosities rooted in race, religion and identity.

In such a situation, what can humanity fall back upon? Rising above the Platonic idea of eternal knowledge that emphasises a positivistic or scientific temperament, we can count on the idea of hope and multiplicity of opinion. Noam Chomsky has reminded us that “Human agency has not ended.” Our hope for the future of the planet lies in the fact that many of us can rise above uncertainty and demand an end to the prevailing narrative of deceit.

The ‘economistic perspective’ of Marxism that better days will come through the proletarian revolution has fallen short. But we can be hopeful of trade unions, universities and grassroots social campaigns as well as radical political visions that defy unthinking, conventional reverence.

It has to be remembered that incredulity is a step towards a more diverse, secular world that can help reinforce the fraying institutions of democracy. Incredulity is not the grandiloquence of eighteenth-century rationalism but a thinking process that is inherently robust enough to interrogate grand narratives and not retreat into abject compliance to historical meaning, experience and knowledge expediently designed to impose the master idea on the masses. Such self-legitimising is designed to promote ‘truth-claims’ — weltanschauung — that the people gradually begin to believe as a common universal reality. In terms of the Gramscian idea of hegemony, the objective of the dominant class is to congeal the dominance of one class over another into cultural permanence. To find a release from subjugation to such a discourse is to find emancipation, a disposition of doubting the ideological apparatuses of the State to safeguard the evolution of a free society. Growth, consequently, can only be guaranteed if people are critical enough to read the subtext of the ‘big ideas’ of the State and interrogate every piece of received, universal wisdom. This is one way of restraining the power of the State that seeks to manipulate the people and engineer consent. To participate in the affairs of the State and to interrogate, for instance, the dominance of capitalism as a social system that has failed to solve the underlying problems of political, economic, and social inequalities would be the markers of an egalitarian society where open debate and difference of opinion can invite vigorous presentations of alternative standpoints that fundamentally differ from the fiction of a pure, universal moral and economic philosophy. Uncertainty, advancement and change, therefore, are the sine qua non of a free, secular society liberated enough to question the ‘sacred’.

Focus on 'what' you eat, not how much, to lose weight!

Time and again, we have been told that to lose weight, we must cut down on calorie intake. However, experts have said that it's not the quantity but quality of your diet that plays an important role in your weight loss journey. According to a study, people who reduced the consumption of highly processed foods, sugars and refined grains and instead, concentrated on consuming plenty of fresh vegetables, fruits and whole grains, lost a significant amount of weight over a period of one year. This proves that it's what you eat that matters for maintaining weight and not how much you're eating, provided it's healthy. The study also showed that this strategy of eating a quality diet works mostly for people who follow diets that are low in fat and carbohydrates. It revealed that one's genetics or one's insulin-response to carbohydrates does not affect their weight loss success. The research strongly supported the notion that people who eat quality diet tend to maintain a healthy weight in the long run. People who concentrate on clean and healthy eating and avoid processed and refined foods, which includes white bread, refined flour, soda, carbonated beverages and sugary snacks, lead a healthy life. The study The study was conducted for a year under a clinical trial by the scientists at Stanford

It should be noted that a body mass index in the range 18.5 to 24.9 is considered healthy. People were divided into two groups. One group was asked to eat a diet low in carbohydrates and the other group ate a diet that was low in fats. Both the groups were asked to focus on healthy foods and not on counting calories. Low-fat group people were discouraged from eating foods that were labelled 'low-fat'. No calorie-intake target was given to either of the groups and they were told to eat as many healthy foods as they wanted to consume. It was noted that over a period of one year, people from low-carb group lost an average of 5 to 6 kilos and those who were in low-fat group lost an average of 4 to 5 kilos. It was also noted that people from both the groups managed to lose waist size, maintained blood pressure, body fat and blood sugar levels. This study also proved that the genetics of participants did not influence the effectiveness of either diet.

University Medical School. A total of 609 adults, between the ages of 18 and 50 were a part of this trial. They were not suffering from diabetes and had a body mass index between 28 and 40. The study was also done to analyse DNA samples to know genetics variants that influence the process of fat and carbohydrates in the body.

Key board is a musical instrument: Khushwinder

The keyboard is such a musical instrument that dissolves the juice in the ears, but it is not easy to play it. It takes hard practice to learn it. This is to say of Punjab's emerging youth keyboardist Khushwinder Singh Dhandha who has been active in the field of music for a long time and is slowly making his mark. In a meeting, this promising musician Khushwinder Singh told Dhandha that he is a resident of village Rupal under Samrala tahsil of district Ludhiana. Born on October 1994, its keyboard player Khushwinder fell in love with music at a young age. After doing Plus Two from Government Senior Secondary School in the area, he decided to try his luck in the world of music with the consent and cooperation of his family members. KL Rahul will score tons of runs in T20 World Cup, predicts Pietersen

AMSTERDAM, OCT 19

Rahul has been in sublime form, with the batter making 62 against Afghanistan in India's last Super Four match of Asia Cup 2022. He has smashed three fifties in five bilateral matches against Australia and South Africa at home.

India opening batter KL Rahul figures on top in Kevin Pietersen's list of players who will excel in the ICC T20 World Cup in Australia, with the former England cricketer predicting the 30-year-old will score tons of runs, though he doesn't think India will win the global event.

Rahul has been in sublime form, with the batter making 62 against Afghanistan in India's last Super Four match of Asia Cup 2022. He has smashed three fifties in five bilateral matches against Australia and South Africa at home.

Rahul has continued his good showing since India landed in Australia in early October, making a patient 74 in the second practice match against Western Australia XI in Perth and followed it up with 57 in a warm-up match against Australia at The Gabba, Brisbane.

In his column for betway.com, Pietersen expressed confidence Rahul will be a class apart with the bat. "I love him. I think he is the No. 1 batter in the world at the moment. He is absolutely fantastic. With the ball bouncing, swinging and seaming, I think he plays in a very authentic way and is correct enough to rack up the runs," opined Pietersen.

Pietersen though predicted England will win the title after their title run in the 2021 edition was cut short in the semifinal by New Zealand. "This England white-ball team is absolutely spectacular. They really are. They're fabulous to watch, they've got all bases covered, and I think they go in as favourites. It was a great victory in Pakistan (seven-match T20I series), a huge victory. And they've been very confident in the way they've played the warm-up games in Australia. It's been the perfect build-up," said Pietersen.

Cool weather conditions add extra factor in World T20 Cup

MELBOURNE, OCT 19

The first thing that was noticed on arrival in this bustling Australian city was the sharp dip in temperature from the warm confines of coastal India.

As one came out of the terminal in the noticeable chilly conditions last night, with the temperature dipping to eight degrees today morning, there was a clear indication that the Australian summer was yet to set in.

How much will these cool weather conditions in Australia affect the prospects of the various teams, including the one led by India's Rohit Sharma, that have assembled in this vast country for the ICC Men's T20 World Cup is open to conjecture.

The tournament, hosted by the reigning T20 World Champions, commenced on October 16 with shock defeats for Sri Lanka and the West Indies against minnows Namibia and Scotland respectively.

The defeat of Sri Lanka against Namibia, which in turn lost to another unfancied team Netherlands in a close game yesterday in Group A of the preliminary league, has made things intriguing, to say the least.

The Lankans bounced back well by thrashing little fancied UAE by 79 runs yesterday to keep their qualifying hopes up and running.

Netherlands, who have won both their league games in the four-team group A so far, will sail through if they defeat Lanka, coming into this tournament with their morale boosted sky high following their title triumph in the Asia Cup held in the UAE last month, tomorrow.

Afghanistan's Rahmanullah Gurbaz expected to feature in team's campaign opener after gaining clearance

BRISBANE: Afghanistan wicketkeeper-batter Rahmanullah Gurbaz is expected to feature in his side's ICC T20 World Cup campaign opener against England after gaining clearance after scans.

Gurbaz, 20, was hit on the left foot by Pakistan pacer Shaheen Shah Afridi's inswinging yorker during his side's warm-up match at The Gabba in Brisbane, which was washed out due to rain.

He was given some medical attention and was carried off the pitch. Gurbaz was later seen wearing a protective boot on his left foot. He was sent to hospitals to get his scans done. Afghanistan Cricket Board (ACB) later said in a statement that the player has been cleared of a serious injury. "Team doctor stated that the results are clear with no bone fracture. He will be assessed in the next two days and is expected to be available for our England fixture on Saturday," ACB was quoted as saying by ESPNcricinfo.

Gurbaz had struggled in the previous T20 WC back in 2021, in which he made 85 runs in five innings. He has been promoted as an opener and his availability will be a boost to his side.

Afghanistan has been placed in Group 1 for the Super 12 phase, along with England, Australia, New Zealand, winner of Group A of round one and runner-up of Group B of round one.

'Sub-standard' material being used in school construction, probe demanded

NIRMAL RADAUR: In the ongoing work in the government school of village Gumthala, a case of sub-standard bricks has come to light. Villagers say that this alleged corruption in school work should be investigated and the work should be done according to proper parameters. Villagers Pankaj, Harnam Singh, Sarvjit, Avtar Singh say that construction work is going on in the government school of the village these days and new rooms for children are coming up on the campus. But the contractor is using inferior material in this work. The bricks used in the construction work are of poor quality. Due to which the possibility of an accident after the construction work cannot be ruled out. Due to this type of corruption, accidents have happened in schools in many places before. An attempt is being made to make fun of children's lives, which should be investigated and strict action should be taken against those found guilty. To beautify shattered relationships is to become Rammay

VIRENDRA JANGRA

TARAORI: In the present, it is necessary to make a life of Ram because, in the shattering society, there is a need to become Shri Ram. Accepting exile for parents at a young age, but today parents are being rejected for the sake of opulence. Shri Ram renounced politics for his brother. He was capable and skilful. He could have become a king, but Ram, a skilled politician, left the throne for his brother. At present, policies are being violated. There is betrayal and slander in the brotherhood. Is the public falling prey to repressive policies? Why? When? Ram Rajya? When will it come? When is the Hindu Rashtra? When will the ram of the people be absorbed into the people? When will you get Ram Dhan? This is Ram Dhan, after which the world becomes happy. People are waiting for Rama to touch the feet of society's consciousness, that is, when will the people sitting on their feet save the people, or will this Ram story go on like this, half untold? Shri Ram first saved the family, kept his wife together, handed over the kingdom to two brothers, kept one brother with him, and met saints in the forest.
