AGENCY NEW DELHI, MAY 16

As Congress is still deliberating on the selection of Karnataka's next chief minister, the sources said that party president Mallikarjun Kharge will announce the name for the top post on Thursday in Bengaluru.

According to sources, Kharge will take the final decision after consulting UPA Chairperson Sonia Gandhi and former party President Rahul Gandhi.

"No Final decision has been made on the Karnataka CM post yet. Congress president has met all the stakeholders. Congress President has met all the stakeholders. Now the final decision will be taken by him in consultation with Rahul Gandhi and Sonia Gandhi. The announcement can be delayed until tomorrow and the announcement can be made in Bengaluru itself," said sources.

Earlier on Tuesday, Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge held meetings with both the potential candidates DK Shivakumar and Siddaramaiah in New Delhi.

Siddaramaiah came to Kharge's residence along with his son Yatindra and MLAs Zameer Ahmad, Bhyrati Suresh, and senior leader KJ George.

Despite Congress' clear mandate in the Karnataka assembly polls, suspense over the chief minister continues as senior leaders DK Shivakumar, who is the Karnataka Congress' president, and Siddaramaiah, former chief minister and leader of the opposition are in the race.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Tuesday met party president Mallikarjun Kharge who is set to make his decision after going through the Congress central observers' report, which was submitted on Monday. However, Shivakumar who had earlier cancelled his visit to the national capital on Monday evening citing health issues, arrived in Delhi on Tuesday.

cently held election to the 224-member Karnataka assembly

"If the party wants they can give me the responsibility...... Ours is a united house, our number is 135. I don't want to divide anyone here. Whether they like me or not, I am a responsible man. I will not backstab and I will not blackmail," he said. "The Party is my god...We have built this party, I am a part of it and I am not alone in this," he said before his departure from Bengaluru. "We have built this party (Congress), we have built this house. I am a part of it...A mother will give everything to her child," he said. Asked about his expectations as the state party president, Shivakumar said," I don't want to comment on what has happened earlier. How it happened. That is a closed chapter we formed the government we lost the government, we lost a coalition government. Who is responsible for the victory and loss there is no use of talking about

Editorial

Bullish blindness

The Jallikattu debate is a complex issue that raises questions about the preservation of cultural traditions vis-á-vis animal welfare. Jallikattu is a traditional bull-taming sport that takes place during the Pongal festival. It is considered to be a sport and a cultural symbol by some, but it has also been the subject of controversy due to the risk of injury to both bulls and participants. Jallikattu was banned by the Supreme Court in 2014. But the Tamil Nadu government passed an ordinance in 2017 and, again, in 2019, making it legal. However, this legal recognition remains contentious as the Supreme Court has reserved its judgment.

In order for Jallikattu to be protected as a cultural right, the same has been provided in Article 29 of the Constitution, which refers to the rights of groups of people to maintain, protect, and develop their cultural heritage and traditions. Jallikattu is believed to have originated as a way of showcasing the strength of bulls that were central to the agricultural economy. Jallikattu is also an economic activity that generates revenue for the local community by enabling small businesses and vendors to sell their products and services. It is also contended that Jallikattu plays an important role in preserving local breeds such as Kangayam, Pulikulam, Umbalachery, Barugur, Alambadi and Malai Maadu. Also, in the T.M.A. Pai case. Justice Khanna had referred to the opinion of the Permanent Court of International Justice in the case of Minority Schools in Albania, wherein the advisory opinion stated that there should exist provisions or mechanisms through which minority groups can preserve the uniqueness of their distinct culture. Jallikattu should be protected as it is a unique culture followed by the people of Tamil Nadu.

But while Jallikattu may be viewed as a cultural right, it cannot override the principle of constitutional morality. Investigations conducted by PETA India have shown that the bulls used in Jallikattu were whipped, beaten and poked with wooden sticks. Their nose-ropes were reportedly yanked roughly, causing their nostrils to bleed, thereby violating Section 11 of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act, 1960. The injured bulls then charged through the streets, frequently injuring onlookers and even goring some of them to death. According to information gathered by PETA, 86 people and 23 bulls have died since Jallikattu's legalisation under the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (Tamil Nadu Amendment) Act, 2017. An investigation by the Federation of Indian Animal Protection Organisations found there is no evidence to suggest that Jallikattu improves the genetic quality of the local breeds.

Bangladesh should think twice before trading in Chinago augments

trading in Chinese currency

ertain financial institutions in Bangladesh are exploring for Chinese payment channels to settle transactions with Russian banks that were removed from the SWIFT system to overcome the challenges experienced by importers and exporters as a result of Western sanctions following Russia's attack on Ukraine, The Asian Age reported.

The Bangladeshi government is apparently under pressure from some pro-Chinese high-ups to switch to the Chinese currency Yuan for foreign transactions.

However, analysts have warned that using the Yuan for foreign payments could result in financial catastrophe. Bangladesh's relations with the United States of America will undoubtedly be impacted if the country abandons the dollar. One of Bangladesh's most important development partners is the United States. Bangladesh shouldn't attempt to bypass SWIFT either because most of its ready-made garment exports go to the USA and European nations, all utilising SWIFT for international transactions. Making poor decisions might seriously damage both the economy and the sovereignty of Bangladesh, as per a report published in The Asian Age.

Cheques will be cleared in Yuan rather than dollars when transactions are conducted through China. But the dollar is the strongest foreign currency. Moving to the Yuan for international trade will hurt Bangladesh's remittances from abroad and lower export revenue as well. Therefore, it would not be advisable to even consider substituting dollars for Yuan, according to The Asian Age.

Bangladesh is resorting to alternate currency arrangements, including the usage of the Chinese Yuan in international transactions, due to the strong dollar and its concern over declining foreign reserves. The central bank of Bangladesh, Bangladesh Bank, announced in mid-September that authorised dealer banks (ADs) can conduct Yuan transactions for commerce with China.

The central bank said in a circular, "To bring [a] wider scope, it has been decided that ADs may maintain accounts in [Yuan] with their correspondents/branches abroad for settlement of cross-border transactions executed in this currency." This follows a decision made in 2018 to enable AD banks to create Yuan-based foreign exchange clearing accounts with Bangladesh Bank. Although China's envoy to the nation was recently cited as saying the overall trade value had reached USD 25 billion, reports place Bangladesh's yearly imports from China at approximately USD 15 billion to USD 16 billion and exports in the other direction at about USD 1 billion. According to experts, Bangladesh can lessen its reliance on the dollar by using the Yuan to pay for around 10 per cent of its import expenses, according to The Asian Age.

Al Mamun Mridha, joint secretary general of the Bangladesh China Chamber of Commerce and Industry said that adding the Yuan as a currency for trade with China is a "very useful step which we had been demanding for a long time." He also said that this would reduce the need for either side to pay conversion fees. And while the availability of Yuan in local banks could be a problem, Mridha suggested that future Chinese loans and investments in Bangladesh could be made in Yuan to expand the stock of the currency.

Taka, the Bangladeshi currency, has lost nearly 25 per cent of its value against the dollar since Russia invaded Ukraine earlier this year, rocking global energy and commodities markets. As import costs rise, inflation in the South Asian country has surged above 7 per cent while its foreign exchange stockpile has fallen sharply.

Reserves that stood at USD 48 billion in August 2021 are now below USD 37 billion -- barely enough to cover import bills for five months. If the International Monetary Fund's more stringent reserve calculation method is used, the figure does not even reach USD 30 billion, according to The Asian Age. This has compelled the government to discourage unnecessary imports and cut spending, including limiting foreign trips by its employees. Bangladesh is also seeking a USD 4.5 billion loan from the IMF, according to reports, along with over USD 1.5 billion from the World Bank and more from various bilateral and multilateral development partners. Meanwhile, authorities are eyeing currency solutions, not only those involving the Yuan. One is a potential taka-ruble swap with sanctions-hit Russia, from which Dhaka is considering importing cheap fuel oil. The day before the Yuan decision was announced, Fi-Minister nance AHM Mustafa Kamal told reporters, "The issue of importing fuel oil from Russia is under discussion and yet to be finalized."

The minister also said,
"We have to swap our currency to make the payment if Russia accepts to do so."

There is also growing talk about the prospect of trade with India in rupees. Bangladesh's imports from India are estimated at approximately USD 14 billion a year, while around USD 2 billion worth of exports go the other way, according to The Asian Age.

India has also made it clear that it does not wish to take on any more exposure to Bangladesh's forex risks.

The State Bank of India (SBI), the country's biggest bank, late last month asked all its branches not to settle letters of credit in dollars or other third-country currencies, and to use trading partners' currencies instead.

Noting that Bangladesh was categorised as "high risk" in its country risk model, the SBI said that "considering the present economic situation and shortage of foreign currency, it has been decided by the competent authority not to assume USD/other foreign currencies exposure on Bangladesh till further instructions," according to reports on the circular.

Literature & Health

Serious disparity in international athletics thletes from less rich countries require additional health knowledge to avoid injuries during rigorous training. However, if there is no access to medically qualified personnel, greater knowledge can raise the danger of injury. This is the conclusion reached by researchers at Linkoping University in Sweden in a new study on athletic inequality.

"There were vast dissupport resources between juniors from various parts of the world." "While European competitors had entire medical teams and computer-based analysis programmes to help them, the main support for young East African competitors was often a family member or teacher from their home village," says Professor Toomas Timpka of Linkoping University's Department of Health, Medicine, and Caring Sciences.The researchers have conducted studies among juniors and seniors who participated in two international athletics championships at an elite level in 2017. In the final study recently published in the British Journal of Sports Medicine, 780 athletes from different countries were asked if they had experienced symptoms of injury during their preparations and, in that case, if this had led them to adapt their training. They were also asked about their ability to independently acquire and use health knowledge to prevent injuries something the researcher's term health literacy. This is an area of which little is known. The researchers also used the UN's annual development index, which ranks countries based on a number of factors, including education and income levels. This was used to estimate the medical support resources of the national teams. Taking development indices into account is new for research, according to Toomas Timpka. The differences in knowledge between adults and young people were shown to be great. Only 13 per cent of the juniors were judged to have basic health literacy, compared with 41 per cent of the adults. Regardless of age, athletes from countries with a high development index were more knowledgeable than competitors from other parts of the Situation of women, girls in Pakistan is critical

The situation of women and girls in Pakistan whether they are Hindu, Christian or Muslim is critical, reported HRWF. On May 8, HRWF organized a conference titled "EU-Pakistan: Human rights, religious freedom and the GSP+", at the Press Club in Brussels to discuss the grim situation of women and girls in Pakistan. NGO representatives in Belgium, Pakistan, Italy and the US participated in the event addressing a series of serious issues.

In Pakistan, there is an increasing issue with girls and women of minority religions, such as Hindus and Christians. Hindus make up about 2 per cent of Pakistan's estimated 220 million people, whereas Christians make up less than 1 per cent, reported HRWF. Women in Pakistan keep on enduring the worst part of constrained relationships, especially when they have been abducted, some have chosen to escape and expose such injustices.

Pakistan is also confronting honour killings cases. Insights from the Common Freedoms Commission of Pakistan mention that there were 1,276 such homicides from 2014 to 2016. Even though the Pakistani Parliament passed a law that prohibits killings related to honour, they go on unabated, particularly in rural areas where many of them are not reported and remain unpunished, reported HRWF.

Pakistani women are being culturally treated as second-class citizens, especially when it comes to female education per cent, which is very low when compared to the literacy rate for men, which is 69 per cent. Gender inequality is a global problem but in Pakistan, it is at the root of many issues. It is regrettable that due to widespread illiteracy and a gender-based bias, Pakistani society is largely ignoring the gender imbalance and the vicious cycle of violence. Every year, there are reports of hundreds of forced conversion incidents. Most victims are from poor families and disadvantaged households. In the southern province of Sindh, which is home to nearly 90 per cent of the Hindu minority group, forced conversions to Islam of kidnapped Hindu girls and their subsequent forced weddings to Muslim men--usually to the abductors--are quite common, reported HRWF. Unfortunately, forcible conversions have not been made illegal in Pakistan by any of the successive administrations. International reports recently said that at least 50 members of Hindu families in the Sindh province are known to have been forcibly converted. A recent report that was presented to the United Nations Human Rights Council regarding the phenomenon of abduction, forced religious conversion and forced marriage of young girls belonging to religious minorities, particularly Christians and Hindus, has been welcomed by Christian communities, Hindus

Mother, let us imagine we are travelling, and passing through a strange and dangerous country. You are riding in a palanquin and I am trotting by you on a red horse. It is evening and the sun goes down. The waste of Joradighi lies wan and grey before us. The land is desolate and barren. You are frightened and thinking-"I know not where we have come to." I say to you, "Mother, do not be afraid." The meadow is prickly with spiky grass, and through it runs a narrow broken path. There are no cattle to be seen in the wide field; they have gone to their village stalls.

Union Minister for Communications, Railways and Electronics & IT, Shri Ashwini Vaishnaw virtually launches SancharSaathi Portal

nion Minister for Communications, Railways and Electronics & IT, Shri Ashwini Vaishnaw today launched 'SancharSaathi' Portal through Virtually launched at Punjab LSA, Dept of Telecommunication, Mohali. With 117 Cr subscribers, India has emerged as the second largest telecom ecosystem in the world. In addition to communication, mobile phones are being used for banking, entertainment, availing government services, etc.It is, therefore, crucial that the users are protected from various frauds suc as identity theft, forged KYC, theft of mobile devices, banking frauds, etc. To protect users, Deptt of Telecom has developed a citizen centric portal named Sanchar

(https://www.sancharsaathi. gov.in) Sanchar Saathi allows citizens to check the connections registered on their names, report fraudulent or unrequired connection, block the mobile phones which are stolen/lost, check IMEI genuineness before buying a mobile phone . Sanchar Saathi portal empowers the citizens to fight against fraudulent activities. The entire system has been designed in-house by Deptt. of Telecom. The system has following modules.Centralized Equipment Identity Register (CEIR):In case any mobile device is stolen or lost, a user can submit the IMEI numbers on the portal. Information submitted by user along with a copy of police complaint is then verified. The system is integrated with the Telecom Service Providers and Law Enforcement Agencies. Once the information is verified, the system blocks the stolen mobile phones from being used in Indian networks. In case anyone tries to use the stolen device, the system allows Law Enforcement Agencies to trace the device.

When the stolen device is recovered, the IMEI can be unblocked on the portal. The system prevents use of stolen/lost mobiles. It also prevents mobiles with inaccurate or forged IMEIs being used in Indian networks. Know Your Mobile: It facilitates the citizens to check the genuineness of IMEI of their mobile device. Telecom Analytics for Fraud Management and Consumer Protection (TAFCOP): It facilitates a user to check the number of mobile connections taken in her/him name using paper-based documents. User enters her mobile number on the portal and authenticates using OTP.

The system shows the total connections taken in her name using paper-based documents (such as paper based Aadhar, passport, etc.) The system allows users to report fraudulent connections. It also allows users to block the connections which are not required. Once reported by the users, the system triggers re-verification process, and the connections are terminated. ASTR (Artificial Intelligence and Facial Recognition powered Solution for Telecom SIM Subscriber Verification): Mobile connections obtained using fake/ forged documents are then used for cyber-frauds. To curb this menace, Deptt of Telecom has developed AI powered tool – ASTR to identify SIM issued using fraudulent / forged documents. ASTR used various techniques of facial recognition and data analytics. In first phase, connections with paper based KYC were analysed.

50-year-old woman with spinal tuberculosis successfully treated via Neuro-Navigation technique at Fortis Mohali

ARNAL (SHIV KUAMR SHARMA): The Neurosurgery Team (Brain and Spine) at Fortis Hospital Mohali has successfully treated a 50-year-old oman suffering from Spinal Tuberculosis via the most advanced technique of Neuro-navigation, the technique is available at a select hospitals in North India, Fortis Hospital Mohali being one of them. Spine Tuberculosis affects the spine and causes infection in the disc and spinal bone. It is the most common form of extrapulmonary tuberculosis. Patient Bala Devi had been experiencing severe lower backache, limb weakness, difficulty in walking along with general malaise for about 5-6 months and had also consulted several doctors but her condition had failed to improve. She finally consulted Dr Harsimrat Bir Singh Sodhi, Senior Consultant, Neuro-Spine Surgery, Fortis Hospital Mohali, recently where subsequent medical examinations revealed that she had Spinal Tuberculosis.

The Patient's MRI of the spine was reevaluated and revealed two collapsed vertebral bodies, along with huge paravertebral collection (pus around the spinal cord), which was presumed to be because of Spinal Tuberculosis. Any delay in treatment would have caused severe neurological complications, spinal deformity and long-standing health implications for the patient. Dr Sodhi advised Neuro-Navigation Surgery as a viable option to treat the spine and drain the pus surrounding the spinal cord. Neuronavigation is a computer-assisted, invasive surgery that allows a surgeon to 'navigate' within the spine with precision. The pus drainage is invasive and requires high amount of precision due to proximity to the kidneys and major blood vessels. Hence, Neuro-navigation assisted needle aspiration of pus was done to avoid any injury to the surrounding vascular structures.

'India is a country of diverse castes and diverse people'

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA

SONEPAT: India is a country of diverse castes and diverse people. While it is a sign of inclusivity, reflecting unity in diversity. The Constitution of India took into account the inequalities and discrimination between different communities. As a result, some fundamental rights were included in the constitution which focused on equality in all aspects. The basic structure of the Constitution laid down in the case of Kesavananda Bharati vs. State of Kerala (1973) can never be abrogated. Later, several amendments were brought in to ensure adequate representation of people belonging to Scheduled Castes or Scheduled Tribes as well as to strike a balance with merit-based appointment to various posts. The Mandal Commission or the Socially and Educationally Backward Classes Commission was introduced in 1979 to review and identify the socially and educationally backward classes of India. It was led by BP Mandal to determine castes that were discriminated against and communities that suffered from economic, social, or educational backwardness to redress their injustice. The 103rd Constitutional Amendment was introduced in 2019 to cover the economic backwardness faced by persons other than those belonging to Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. Recently, the Supreme Court upheld the validity of the 103rd Constitutional Amendment. The above was discussed by Prof. Virendra Kumar, Founder Director, Chandigarh Judicial Academy, at the Dr. B.R. Ambedkar National Law University, Sonipat on Reservation for EWS under 103rd Amendment of the Constitution via Basic Structure Doctrine as envisioned by Dr. B.R. Ambedkar. Speaking as the keynote speaker in the lecture organized.

Vice-Chancellor Dr. Archana Mishra welcomed the guests by presenting a sapling.
