Suspense continues over Karnataka CM

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, MAY 17

Siddaramaiah's supporters were seen bursting firecrackers and distributing sweets after his meeting with Rahul Gandhi, but the suspense over the Karnataka Chief Minister's post after the Congress's emphatic victory in the assembly elections endured for the fourth day.

Amid the suspense over the next Karnataka Chief Minister's name, Congress' state in-charge Randeep Singh Surjewala on Wednesday categorically said that announcement for the coveted post will be made by party's national president Mallikarjun Kharge within next 48 to 72 hours.

"Congress president believes in three principles-- consensus, unanimity and unity. Kharge ji, who has been authorised to appoint the leader of the next legislature party (in Karnataka) by the Congress Legislature Party will announce the name after holding due deliberations. Deliberations are currently being held by him. It's only a matter of today or tomorrow, we will have a new leader of the Congress Legislature Party. We will have a new cabinet in Karnataka within next 48 to 72 hours," Surjewala told reporters here.

The Rajya Sabha MP said, "Karnataka will have a five year stable Congress government. It will have a government which will be committed to peace, progress and harmony."

He added, "The Congress is committed to fulfill its five guarantees in the first sitting of the state Cabinet. The party is committed to give a clean, transparent and a responsible government."

Taking a swipe at the BJP, Surjewala said, "Stop believing in BJP propelled propaganda which is frustrated by the decisive defeat in Karnataka."

Earlier in the day, former CM Siddaramaiah, who is one of the front runners for the CM post, met party leader Rahul Gandhi at the 10 Janpath residence of his mother and UPA chairperson Sonia Gandhi.

Siddaramaiah, who has been camping in the national capital since Monday, remained 'tight-lipped' despite being posed a volley of questions by the reporters about his meeting with Rahul.

Karnataka Congress president DK Shivakumar, who is determined to stake his claim for the CM post, by crediting himself for the party's stupendous victory in the Assembly polls, also met the former Congress chief here.

Meanwhile, he also met the Congress president at his residence here.

EDITORIAL

Push for self-reliance

Self-reliance in the defence sector is a lofty goal but excessive dependence on public sector companies to meet the objectives of indigenisation could become a stumbling block. There is a need to strike a balance between promoting 'Atmanirbharta' in defence production and the requirements of the armed forces to ensure preparedness as the country faces a two-front threat from Pakistan and China. There is no doubt that indigenisation is an important way to bridge critical gaps in defence capability, the drive, however, should not mean ignoring the need for acquisition of modern weapons through imports. The defence ministry's approval of a fresh list of 928 components and subsystems, to be procured exclusively from the domestic industry, will certainly help the cause of indigenisation but the involvement of the private sector will further speed up production. This is the fourth such 'positive indigenisation list (PIL)' comprising line replacement units, sub-systems and components used for various military platforms, equipment and weapons. India's indigenisation drive has been largely dependent on the DRDO (Defence Research and Development Organisation) and the DPSUs (Defence Public Sector Undertakings) to deliver on the promise. However, many of the DRDO's projects have been delayed. The armed forces, which are projected to spend around $130 billion in capital procurement over the next five years, have also raised the issue of product quality. Their needs are urgent, hence they often take recourse to imports rather than wait for DRDO projects to fructify. The DRDO's problems range from inadequate manpower in critical areas to the lack of proper synergy with the armed forces.

To compete with global defence R&D organisations, the DRDO has to have much larger budgets, trained manpower and more freedom in its operations. The best way forward is to encourage more private sector companies to participate in defence production, especially in the medium and high-tech regimes, to boost indigenisation in the sector. Premier institutes such as IITs and even private universities need to be incentivised to get into the defence sector to run academic courses. The government needs to provide tax incentives to defence manufacturers. Given the prevalent institutional limitations in manpower induction and cutting-edge technology, defence budgetary allocations are bound to run short for a nation the size of India. Innovative methods have to be found to augment the resources. The import of high-tech platforms, equipment and even ammunition shows that India still has a long way to go before it becomes self-reliant in critical defence technologies. The private sector is still not in a position to meet the needs of the armed forces largely because it has been deliberately kept out of defence production. Often, the procedures are cumbersome and stacked against the private sector. There is a need to encourage startups, especially relating to cutting-edge technology products such as drones used in warfare.

Shifting from distressed areas to better neighbourhoods can improve kids' asthma

A new study has found that children who have shifted from distressed areas to better neighbourhoods have improved kids' asthma. The study was published in the journal, 'Journal of the American Medical Association'.

The study involved 123 children, ages 5 to 17, with persistent asthma whose families took part in a six-year housing mobility program in Baltimore.

Before moving, for every 100 children, there were approximately 88 severe asthma attacks per year. After moving, there were approximately 40 severe attacks per year, a reduction of more than 50 per cent.

"That degree of improvement is larger than the effect we see with asthma medications," said epidemiologist Elizabeth Matsui, M.D., senior author of the study and a professor of population health and paediatrics at Dell Med. "We were also surprised to find that improvements in neighbourhood stressors, including feeling safer in their new community and experiencing better social cohesion with neighbours, seemed to be major factors in the improvements in asthma."

In fact, researchers found that the reduction in neighbourhood-related stress was responsible for between 20 per cent and 35 per cent of the improvement in asthma exacerbations and symptoms. The number of symptom days also declined with moving, from five days to just under three days in a two-week period.

Previous efforts to improve asthma by addressing household-level exposures such as mouse and cockroach allergens have had only modest success in improving asthma. Programs that support families that want to move to better-resourced neighbourhoods provide an alternative approach that appears to be more effective, according to Matsui.

"These findings confirm what we've long suspected: A big part of the asthma burden is not about who you are. It's about where you live," said Matsui. "This study demonstrates that programs designed to counter housing discrimination can have significant positive health effects for the children who move."

Matsui said she thinks the outcomes of this study are scalable to other cities that offer similar housing mobility programs.

The findings could also explain persistent racial and ethnic disparities in childhood asthma, Matsui said since Black and Latinx/Hispanic children are more likely to live in distressed, urban areas because of historical and current-day housing discrimination.

Young people in China struggle to find work

People are struggling to find jobs in China. Many people have said that they are now at their breaking point, according to a report by New York based television network NTD. The job market struggles in China come months after authorities lifted the COVID-19 pandemic restrictions and reopened its borders. Data released by China's National Bureau of Statistics in April showed the situation was getting worse, ABC News reported.

According to the statistics, the national unemployment rate for 16-24-year-olds was at 19.5 per cent, nearly 3 per cent higher than in December. The rise comes despite China lifting the COVID-19 restrictions.

Tony Bie graduated from a university in China with graduation degree two years ago. However, he is still unemployed, as per the ABC News report. He said, "Sometimes I wonder why I went to university." Tony Bie is one of about 30 million unemployed young people in China.

Tony Bie further said, "If I had got a job straight out of high school, I would be a manager now." The 23-year-old man said that he wanted to study further as it would increase his chances of getting a job. However, he said that the competition for university places is fierce and he has thrice failed the entrance test for the course.

The University of Western Australia senior lecturer in Chinese studies Tao Yu said young people in China generally believed that a good education would lead to a well-paid job, as per the news report. However, the reality is that China's economic struggles driven by COVID-19 restrictions implied that there were fewer jobs for university graduates.

As per the news report, some young Chinese people are opting to set up stalls in night markets to avoid the "996" work culture and solve their income issues. Many other young people depend on family support to make ends meet as China has no welfare payments for unemployed youth.

A large number of young people working in the technology, education and property sectors have lost their jobs due to the Chinese government's crackdown on the technology, education and property sectors has left a large number of young people in these industries out of a job. Many technology giants have laid off thousands of workers, as per the ABC News report.

The unemployment problem in China has prompted young people to raise their concerns on social media. Young people on social media accused state media of shirking their responsibilities and making them the main culprits of China's economic situation, as per the ABC News report. Their statements on social media were quickly censored.

Art of Giving: A way of life

Achyuta Samanta

Art of Giving (AOG) is a philosophy of life that aspires to promote happiness and peace in the world. It starts on the premise that it is a basic human desire and nature to seek happiness and peace. But in the course of material pursuits, sometimes human beings as the most evolved characters lose this intrinsic habit and get jaundiced by self-interests. It is solely for this reason that AOG should be consciously practised so that there is proliferation of peace and happiness in the world. It is an attempt to heal the world and create a sea-change by spreading the message of Hope and Harmony transcending borders, castes, creed, nationality strengthened by the bonds of humanity.

Giving is a selfless and helpful action motivated by the desire to help another person without the expectation of any reward or even an avoidance of punishment in return. It is a natural instinct in humans, which if practiced can help create a society where peace and compassion takes centre stage. It is through practicing these principles of AOG, that society can create a space of sustainable co-existence. This informs the origin, evolution and growth of AOG.

We have empowered about two million lives through quality education and empowerment. In fact, I started giving and sacrificing at the age of five, when I was penniless. This selfless giving throughout my life culminated in 'Art of Giving' to give to the world a philosophical and action-oriented framework to experience the joy of giving on 17 May 2013, and since then AOG has become a civic movement- a volunteer-based campaign to make people aware of the art of giving. My experiences of deprivation taught me the true transformative power of giving, and it was from these experiences that the Art of Giving was born with a deep desire to help those who are less fortunate and spread peace, joy, and harmony in the world. The real objective of AOG is not just to give money or materialistic support to the ones who need but to help someone with dignity, not charity and bringing joy to their lives. One cannot deny the power of patient hearing and sweet words that can give solace in a crisis.

Art of Giving took the form of a trust, an NGO, that works on the cause of promoting positivity, kindness and compassion and expressing gratitude to the ones who give. In a world, where there is immense pain, misery and deprivation, yet plethora of wealth and riches, Art of Giving provides a platform to connect the ones who need it and one who have enough to give but do not get a right way to contribute. Art of Giving provides a trustworthy platform for people to give with discernment and encourage the habit of giving. It has been proven scientifically too, that when we give, we are in the state of happiness. More and more people worldwide are joining the movement to spread the message of peace & happiness in the world.

For the last nine years, Art of Giving community, consisting of well-wishers and those inspired by it, celebrate 17 May as International Day of Art of Giving on themes like Society, Spirituality, Humanity and to unite the three through art of giving in 2014, Kompassion: The Garment Bank to donate old recyclable clothes and other material to the needy in 2015, Connecting with the World and Self through practice of gratitude in 2016, Cyclothon to spread a message of healthy living and green future in 2017.

Post the year 2017, the family of Art of Giving rose from thousands to millions with the introduction of community contribution for community building. The numbers grew exponentially and so did the volunteers. Since then AOG has been what it was always meant to be: by the public, of the public and for the public. In 2018, Pyaar Bhara Pack was a huge success. Over 20 million meals were distributed. In 2019, Bag of Happiness united people together by gifting happiness kits to the students. Struggling during the pandemic, in 2020 the theme was AOG Fights Corona to acknowledge the COVID warriors and help victims. In 2021, the theme was 'My Mother My Hero' wherein the AOG community wrote gratitude letters to mothers, the givers. In 2022, 'Hope, Happiness and Harmony' was the theme to connect and support each other through simple acts of love, compassion, empathy, kindness and gratitude. This year, in the decade of Art of Giving the theme is "Helping the Help".

With over 20 million followers and 1.5 million members, the AOG family has grown exponentially. The conveners from over 300 locations in 120 countries across the globe, all states in India and all panchayats and blocks of Odisha work throughout the year for spreading the message of Art of Giving and Volunteerism. Through social media, AOG has touched around 10 million lives and with a huge follower base that interacts virtually, and aims to unite the world by the spirit of giving.

Every day, AOG strives to make this world a better place. AOG works on numerous humanitarian projects and service initiatives including: disaster relief, sustainable rural development, empowerment of women, environmental sustainability, healthcare camps and democracy promotion. The young, dynamic, and committed volunteers are charged with the mission of harnessing the power of love and compassion to make a large-scale social impact.

Art of Giving is not a new concept; it has been practiced for centuries. Needless to say, charity is an important tenet of every religion, because compassion is essential for spiritual life. In Indian scriptures, 'daan' or charity occupies a very prominent place. Every religion preaches the same ideology of philanthropy, be it the Quran's "sadaqa" or "zakat", Buddhism's charity to the needy; Jainism's charity of offering food, saving lives of others in danger, distributing medicine and spreading knowledge; Judaism's Tzedakah meaning justice or righteousness to denote charity; Christianity's expression of charity as an essential component of faith and Zoroastrianism that considers poverty and suffering as an affliction of evil; hence it is the duty of every individual to fight this evil. The Art of Giving community has brought a fresh perspective to the concept of giving back to society. The organization's philosophy of giving without expecting anything in return has touched numerous lives and has inspired millions to join the cause. The International Day of Art of Giving serves as a reminder to all of us that we can make a positive difference in someone's life through simple acts of kindness, love, and gratitude. The Art of Giving community is a shining example of how one person's actions can have a ripple effect and change the world for the better.

pedigree of introducing flagship products in the Flotation tire and IF& VF tire segments.Speaking at the special launch in Ludhiana, Harinder Singh, President APAC said, “At YOHT, we have always focussed on maximizing farmer productivity by providing differentiated products at an affordable price. What makes AGRI STAR II R-I special is that it has been created to address the needs of the end-users - the farmers. The life of an agriculture tire along with its mid-life efficiency was a concern expressed by the farmers and AGRI STAR II R-I with Stratified Layer Technology addresses precisely that.” SLT is a unique combination of two layers: The top layer with a single angle profile and bottom layer with a multi-angle profile. The combination of these layers in AGRI STAR II R-I ensures higher lug competency. With SLT, after 40% wear, multi-angle profile layer of the lug comes in contact with the ground which leads to increased contact area at the central portion which in turn results in increased grip and better roadability of the tire. “It's encouraging to see that more and more Indian farmers are upgrading to modern methods and technologically advanced products to prepare and harvest their crops. We are confident that AGRI STAR II R-I will live up to their expectations from a Radial Agri Tire,” added Harinder Singh

ASCI Annual Complaints Report 2022–23: Gaming emerges as top violative sector as digital scrutiny intensifies

CHANDIGARH : The Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI) released its annual complaints report for 2022-23 which contains several startling observations, especially those pertaining to advertising in the digital space. During the period, ASCI reviewed 7,928 advertisements across different media, including print, digital and television. ASCI has stepped up its scrutiny of ads nearly 2 folds over the last 2 years. TV and print advertisers continued to be highly compliant at 94%, however the overall compliance is lower at 81% due to digital. Hence, digital ads emerged not just as a leading violator, with 75% of ads processed being from the digital space, but also as the least compliant. This raises serious concerns about the safety of consumers in the online space. As per the report, the real-money gaming industry surpassed the education sector to emerge as the most violative sector, moving from fifth to first place. An astounding number (92%) of gaming advertisements reviewed by ASCI for FY 2022–23 did not adhere to the guidelines for real money gaming and failed to inform consumers about the risks of financial loss and addiction. The sector also gained the dubious distinction of being the least compliant, with only 50% of ads being modified voluntarily after they have been called out. It may be remembered that ASCI had released its guidelines for the Real-Money gaming sector in December 2020, and the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting had thereafter released an advisory asking all parties to comply with the guidelines.

Will Vicky Kaushal divorce Katrina Kaif?

At times journalists test the actors by asking them 'tricky' questions! Vicky Kaushal recently faced a 'googly' from a reporter at the trailer launch event of his upcoming quirky comedy 'Zara Hatke Zara Bachke.'

Headlined by Vicky and Sara (Ali Khan), the trailer of the movie shows the couple fighting for a divorce after a lovey-dovey phase. Taking a cue from there, a reporter asked Vicky whether he would divorce Katrina (Kaif) if he found a better actress. For a few moments, Vicky remained tongue-tied, looking for words to answer the question.

Then he joked, "Sir, sham ko ghar bhi jana hai! Aise aise tade medi sawal puch rahe ho, bacha hu abhi bada toh hone do. Kaisa Jawab do iska mai! Itna Khatarnak sawal pucha hai." (Sir, I have to return home! You are asking such tricky questions, I am too young. Let me grow up. How am I supposed to answer this? Such a dangerous question you have asked!)"

Then Vicky simply responded that he would be married to Katrina for many lifetimes together. (Janmo Janmo tak!)

At this very event, Vicky called his married life with Katrina 'completely sorted.' Talking about it, Vicky said, "God always maintains balance in everyone's life. My real life has become so sorted that I have found Katrina. So there will always be a mess in my real life but my real life will be sorted. So this is the balance of life."

Vicky and Katrina got married on December 9, 2021, in Rajasthan in the presence of close friends and family members.

Jackie Chan to star in action sequel 'A Legend'

Jackie Chan has come on board to act in a sequel to his 2005 martial arts fantasy-adventure hit 'The Myth'.

According to the Hollywood Reporter, the movie will be directed by Chan's longtime collaborator Stanley Tong (Rumble in the Bronx). The movie is titled 'A Legend'.

The sequel will have a budget of USD 50 million, which is considered to be a large amount for the Chinese film industry.

Yixing Zhang (Kung Fu Yoga) and Coulee Nazha (Police Story 2013) will star alongside Jackie Chan in 'A Legend'.

Produced by Bona Film Group, the film makes its market debut in Cannes with Taiwan-based Distribution Workshop handling worldwide sales.

Chan will reprise his role as archaeology expert Professor Chen in the sequel. The film's action begins when he notices that the texture of the artefacts discovered by his students during a glacier expedition is strikingly similar to a jade pendant he had seen in his dreams.

Suspecting that the pendant is acting as a bridge between the realm of dreams and reality, Professor Chen leads his research team on a journey deep into the Glacier Temple, embarking on a fantastical adventure, according to Hollywood Reporter.

Released in 2005, 'The Myth' became Hong Kong's third-highest-grossing film of the year and reached a worldwide total of USD 120 million. At 69, Chan shows no signs of slowing down his legendary movie career.
